A FEMININE IMPULSE.

The small number of people aware of the existence of Miss Dorothy Maxwell were divided into two sections. There were those who considered her life most enviable; there were others who deemed it highly reprehensible. But as Dorothy herself was ignorant alike of envy or condemnation she continued to live in the charming and admirably appointed Georgian house in Kensington, and in a pleasant environment created by lavish but intelligent expenditure on the part of the Marquis of Bewdavon. For some years she had been mistress of Belper Lodge, yet her life was extremely dull. Lord Bewdavon was a busy man both socially and politically, and a close friend of his father, the aged Duke of Strathwayte—a circumstance so singular that it was a constant source of comment among his contemporaries. Consequently, at first he was frequently away from London for weeks together, either filling political or social engagements, or staying with his father, who never left the country, and as Dorothy had no friends and no companions save the faded widow of a military officer whom Bewdavon had engaged as her chaperon to accompany her to the play when he was otherwise engaged, the comfort and pleasure of her life were marred by its loneliness.

Dorothy had an overwhelming respect for Lord Bewdavon, but she did not love him, and this in the earlier days of her conquest had given her sin a blacker tinge in her own eyes. A native cleverness, added to acute feminine perception, had shown her that Bewdavon had none of the characteristics of the average man who enters lightly upon irregular unions. Morally, perhaps, he was neither better nor worse; mentally he was incomparably superior. Mere beauty and platitudes wearied him, and when Dorothy discovered the gulf that lay between their intelligences she set herself diligently to bridge it over. Bewdavon's devotion to politics—a devotion he had inherited from a long line of ancestors—gave Dorothy her opportunity, and during his many absences a string of masters occupied her days, hard study her solitary evenings. One day, by the merest chance, Bewdavon stumbled upon a pile of books dealing with abstruse questions, with history, philosophy and political economy, their margins covered with notes in Dorothy's neat handwriting—a handwriting that bore evidence of the class from which she had sprung.

"How this woman loves me!" he said to himself, his eyes growing dim as he turned over volume after volume. At that moment Dorothy entered the room, and, seeing the books strewed around him, hesitated. "I have never penetrated into your sanctum before," he said, pointing to the many evidences of her plodding. "I sincerely wish I had. Have you been wading through all these books to please me?"

Dorothy faltered. His immediate conclusion that she had been educating herself for his sole benefit filled her with a vague irritation.

"I—I wished to understand you better," she stammered.

"You have succeeded in making me understand you," he answered, kissing her reverently.

From that day they insensibly drifted into a close friendship, and often as Dorothy sat by Bewdavon, steadily helping him with his many researches, and filled with admiration for his marvelous sympathy and broad outlook upon life, she would cry bitterly to herself: "Why cannot I love this man? Why cannot I love him?" And so the days passed, the woman endeavoring to stifle the impulses of her heart by severe study, the man glorying in her beauty and her intelligence, until the Duke of Strathwayte fell dangerously ill.

"This illness may last for months," said Bewdavon, as he was leaving Belper Lodge, "and I cannot be away from him. Go abroad, Dorothy, with Mrs. Vane."

"How could I help you then?" she asked, a terror of strange places and peoples suddenly taking possession of her. "There is much I can do for you if I stay here."

"But it will do you good. You need a change," he protested.

"We will compromise," she said, smiling. "I will go to Brighton"—

"And be thoroughly idle," he concluded, patting her cheek. "You have been working too hard."

At the end of a fortnight Dorothy returned, hurrying the meek Mrs. Vane protestingly from the delights of the hotel, the victim of a restlessness that left her no peace. Soon after her return to Belper Lodge she was one afternoon idly scanning the pages of a magazine, when her eye fell upon an illustration of the interior of a large draper's shop. She rose abruptly, filled with a sudden desire for her old life—to smell the aerial scent of new calico, to see the long line of flaring lights over each counter, to hear the ripping of cloth, the conversation of the tired shopgirls. Memories of her girlhood surged through her brain as she leaned against the mantelpiece, and an incurable longing to see the great drapery establishment where she had worked took possession of her. She picked up the magazine, and then, with a muffled cry, threw it down and ran to her bedroom. The tea gown of diaphanous lace and silk was torn off, and a few moments later Dorothy slipped out of the house, a sad colored cloak and a thick veil shrouding her figure and face. Hailing a hansom, she was passing through the glitter of Piccadilly on her way to the Tottenham Court road before she realized that she had succumbed to a temptation she had successfully combated for months.

Dismissing the cab some distance below Messrs. Yardsticks' mammoth premises, she walked slowly past the plate glass windows, filled with the cheapest rubbish that ever the British workingman and his wife were deluded into buying. Dorothy could have told the small crowd of wondering women gathered round the windows, commenting on the cheapness of various "bargains," many secrets had she been so minded, but her eyes were fixed on a large mirror, in which she could see the reflection of the assistants serving behind the counter. She was now at the mercy of her emotions, and entering the shop took her place among a row of women who were waiting to be served by a pale, tired looking girl whose face was lined by overwork, late hours and bad food. Dorothy watched her swift scissors as they ran through the rolls of calico and the rapid movement of her hands with fascinated curiosity. She felt that she was watching herself—the self of years before. So engrossed was she that the familiar "What can I do for you, miss?" found her with nothing to say. She looked round helplessly, and then gave a trifling order. While the girl was doing up the parcel she leaned forward, whispering:

"Have you forgotten me, Lizzie? I'm Dorothy Maxwell."

The parcel dropped from the girl's hands.

"I can't see through your veil," she said. "We thought you were dead."

Dorothy glanced hastily round the shop, where under the flaring gaslights she recognized many faces. She raised her hand to her veil, then hesitated.

"Where is John?" she asked.

"John is married," the girl said sullenly, "and has set up in business for himself."

Dorothy clutched at the counter, and for a moment the oppressive smell, the garish lights and the sound of coarse voices seemed to be one whirling mass that blinded her.

"He waited a long time," the girl went on in a vindictive undertone, "but he got tired and married last year. He used to say some nasty things about you, I can tell you, for going off as you did, with never a word, and you engaged to him too. What are you doing now?" she added, raising her voice. "Still stopping some girl or other from marrying the man she likes, as you stopped me from marrying John?" Dorothy shook her head helplessly, and, throwing some coins down upon the counter, walked out of the shop.

Instinctively she turned toward the park, her mind filled with memories of the past, with its hard and ceaseless work, its privations and simple pleasures, and with the part John Gregory had played in that past. So her tender, helpful lover was married, she thought, as she crouched on a seat under the dripping trees—married, and she was forgotten. And she had come to tell him that she had wearied of the luxury of the last four years, that she needed him to be happy, and that if he would forgive and forget the wrong she had done him she would marry him, as she had promised him in the old days.

John was married. She smiled bitterly to herself as she thought of her wild desire, as she drove to the Tottenham Court road to tell him everything—of the accident in Oxford street that had first brought her under Lord Bewdavon's notice, of his constant kindness during her following illness, of the temptation to which she yielded because she was always tired and often hungry, and of the four years at Belper Lodge—and now there was no need. Stunned and dizzy she rose to her feet, clearly seeing that she had no one now upon whom to rely to protect her from herself. Her castle of cards had fallen to the ground, the man upon whom she had leaned—perhaps foolishly—to redeem the past had forgotten her, and the agony of her disappointment was supreme.

But the habits of four years are not to be shaken off in an hour, and the striking of the neighboring clocks reminded Dorothy that she must return to dinner, but as her cab bore her through the slippery streets the whirling wheels seemed to repeat, "As the tree falls so it shall lie." Dorothy shuddered, but still the words rang remorselessly through her brain, following her up the broad staircase at Belper Lodge and into the quiet of her own room.

Then she faced the situation. She was at least necessary to Lord Bewdavon, and he, to whom she owed so much, should not find her wanting. He loved her, and John had forgotten. Perhaps she deserved that he should forget. But when she was dressing for dinner the pathos of the situation came to her suddenly. "I shall be sentimental for once," she thought. "Tonight I shall wear mourning for my dead love; tomorrow I shall forget."

The bright eyed French maid could not understand madam's inexplicable desire to wear the only black gown she possessed that night. A bright dress, the pink and white, would drive away madam's migraine, but Dorothy silenced her objections, and in silent protest the woman clothed her in the somber garb she had chosen.

Dorothy had reached the first landing on her way to the drawing room when she heard the hall door open and a "Yes, my lord," from the footman in reply to an eager question. The next moment Lord Bewdavon was beside her.

"Ah, you have seen the papers," he said, touching her dress. "I was too worried to telegraph. How thoughtful, how good of you, Dorothy," he went on sadly. "You have worn this tonight because you knew how much I loved him." And his eyes filled with tears.

"Your father"— she stammered.

"He died last night. He would have loved you as much as I do had he known you, Dorothy. I shall never forget your sympathy." Again he touched the black dress, then kissed her as he had never kissed her before.

One morning, a fortnight later, Lord Bewdavon, now Duke of Strathwayte, drove to Belper Lodge, leaving shortly afterward with Dorothy. When they returned, the servants addressed her as "your grace."

KNOWN BY HIS SCARS.

That Is the Way Uncle Sam Keeps Track of His Enlisted Men.

While a good many people know in a general way of the Bertillon system for the identification of criminals, comparatively few know of the simple method which Uncle Sam has been using for a number of years past to keep track of the men who eat his rations and wear his uniform in the regular army. The system employed by the war department might be termed the "natural method" and is at once simple and ingenious. It does away with all apparatus except a vertical measuring rod and a pair of scales. It is known as "the scar system" and has been found wonderfully effective.

There is an unwritten theory in the army that every man who enlists will at some time or other desert. This is not entirely true, but the desertions are numerous enough to make it worth while to keep track of the offenders. In war the penalty for desertion is death, but in peace it is a long term of imprisonment, and the subject is liable to punishment no matter how long a term has elapsed since his offense was committed. Strange as it may seem, the men who desert most readily are the ones who straightway go back and enlist again, though usually in some remote section of the country.

The "recruiting card," as it is called, is big enough to contain two 6 inch outlines of a man's form, front and rear view, with a good sized border for marginal notes. When the recruit is stripped for his physical examination, he is gone over from head to foot, and every appreciable scar or permanent skin blemish is recorded. Its location is accurately noted by a dot on the card, and its description is written on the margin. The hands and face usually have the greatest number of scars, but those on the body are apt to be the more pronounced and characteristic, as it is usually a more severe wound that penetrates the clothing and leaves its record on the flesh beneath. Moles are also noted, their color and dimensions, and other birthmarks or blemishes that would not ordinarily disappear with time.

The question may arise as to what if a man have no scars, moles or birthmarks. That would be enough to identify him, for in all the thousands of men who have been catalogued by the department there has never been one who bore less than three clearly defined scars, while seven or eight is the more usual number, and there are some cases where the number runs up to 30 or 35. Further, so infinite are the chances of combination that there have never been two individuals whose height, weight and the number and location of their scars came anywhere near coinciding.—Washington Star.

Slum Work In London.

To accomplish any substantial result in slum work in London, a woman must not only give time and strength but life itself. Miss Meredith Brown, the English philanthropist, who has been the champion of the factory girls for some years, says that women who know only the slums of New York and Chicago have no conception of the horrors and misery of the slums close to the aristocratic parts of London. The girls which Miss Brown's special mission reaches are so rough and lawless that the Salvation Army would not take them in, and the directors of a mission which had invited the girls to tea refused to allow them into the building again. The girls came to the feast with pillow slips under their aprons and snatched everything to eat off the table before their hostesses could stop them.

Finally the courageous women interested in the welfare of these young semisavages decided that to reach the girls they would have to live among them. Ten dauntless women took up their residence in a rickety old house in the very heart of all the misery and squalor which makes the wild girls what they are, and their efforts at last were met with more than an encouraging response. "But it is very hard on the health," says Miss Brown. "Two years will break down any one, so we have lost some of our best workers."—New York Commercial.

Made a Difference.

"I can't take that half dollar, madam. It's a counterfeit."

"Why, I got it here yesterday morning."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, sir. I bought a pair of shoes for $3.50. I handed you a $5 bill. You gave me a dollar bill and this half dollar in change. There can't be any mistake about it. I haven't had any other 50 cent piece in my possession since."

"Let me look at it again. H'm—the coin's all right. It looks a little suspicious, but on closer examination I find it's only battered. I'll take it."

"Oh, I beg your pardon. Now that I think about it I didn't get it here at all. A fruit peddler gave it to me in charge this morning. I had forgotten it. However, if it's all right you'll take it, so it doesn't make any"—

"H'm—on looking at it still closer, ma'am, I find my first impression was correct. It's a counterfeit and a bad one. I shall have to refuse it, ma'am."—Chicago Tribune

SONOMA, OCTOBER 2, 1897.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

THE criminal libel suit against D. W. Ravenscroft of the Petaluma Courier was called in the Superior Court at Santa Rosa last Monday. The defendant entered a plea of not guilty and the case was set for trial on Monday, October 27th.

SHERIFF SAM ALLEN says that law and order must prevail in this valley if he has to send half a dozen deputies down this way to assist Deputy Ohm. Sam doesn't purpose to let the hobos and their sympathizers run affairs in this town and don't you forget it.

SONOMA City's tax levy this year is less than that of any other incorporated town in the State. The rate is only 30 cents on the $100 of taxable property as against 60 cents in Cloverdale, $1.28 in Santa Rosa and 80 cents in Healdsburg. Considering the fine condition of our streets and the many public improvements made on a levy of 35 cents last year the people of Sonoma can congratulate themselves on having one of the best Boards of City Trustees that has ever been elected to serve them.

LAST week's report covering the business failures in the United States is more encouraging than any which has been presented since the upward tendency of business which came with the inauguration of President McKinley. The entire number of business failures reported last week was only 169, which was less than half the number in the corresponding week of September, 1893, the first year of Cleveland's second term, and vastly less than any corresponding week during the entire four years of his occupancy of the Presidential chair.

THE opponents of a municipal ownership of water works are trying to create the impression that the City Trustees have abandoned the water question. On the contrary, they are more confident now than ever of the proposition carrying when the proper time arrives to present it to the people. When the Supreme Court will have handed down its decision in the suit brought by P. W. Murphy against the City of San Luis Obispo an election will be called to decide the much-mooted question. An election at this time would be a waste of public funds.

A VICIOUS tramp named Dan Rice was arrested last Wednesday by Marshal Robin while in the act of assaulting the officer with a rock. The arrest of the desperado was made at the point of a pistol. The tramp is in jail, but the officer is still at large. It is now in order to have the latter arrested on a charge of drawing a deadly weapon with intent to do great bodily harm to the former. It is true the conspiracy against officer Ohm failed last week, but if the friends and sympathizers of the genus hobo perserve they may yet be able to turn the town over to Mr. Jas. Donovan and Mr. Dan Rice and others of their ilk.

MESSRS. Finley, Richards & Dunbar, our young friends of The Evening Press, Santa Rosa, have purchased the plant and good will of the daily and weekly Democrat of that city and will consolidate the two papers with a capital stock of $30,000. The Press, although less than two years old, has had a phenomenal success and now enjoys the distinction of being the best daily newspaper north of San Francisco. Messrs. Thos. L. and Robt. A. Thompson, the former owners of the Democrat, have probably done more, through the medium of their newspaper, to develop and build up Sonoma county the past thirty years than any other two men in the county. It is with regret that we announce their leave-taking. It can be truthfully said of them that they are the pioneer newspaper men of old Sonoma.

"Madge is either awfully careless, or she is engaged." "What do you mean?" "Why, she says she can't wear a skirt waist but one day!"

New Advertisements.

The attention of our lady readers is called to Mrs. G. H. Hotz's adv. which announces that her fall and winter opening of new millinery, dry goods and novelties will take place on Monday, October 4th. Mrs. Hotz has selected her stock with great care this season and extends a cordial invitation to the ladies of Sonoma Valley to be present at the opening.

Duhring is on deck again this week with bargains in flour, bran, barley and all kinds of feed. First come, first served. See his new adv. in this issue and secure your share of the stock, as it is going off like hot cakes.

Messrs. Hendley and Hansen of Glen Ellen advertise in this issue the raffle of a Chickering piano. There will be only 150 chances at $1 each on an instrument that originally cost $800.

Geo. Bruchner publishes a notice in these columns which he desires everybody to read. It will be found on the second page.

Mr. J. B. Barbarin has again assumed charge of the City Bakery, Mr. L. Quartaroli, who has been conducting the business the past two years, having retired to engage in the hotel business. Mr. Barbarin has engaged the services of a first-class baker and will serve his customers a superior article of French and other kinds of bread. Read his ad which appears in another column.

Away with Melancholy,

And bid dull care avaunt," sounds very well in verse, but if you have a case of the "blues" caused by indigestion, with biliousness added on as an extra horror, you cannot say hey! presto! and thus insure the departure of those abominable twins. The "proper caper" when thus troubled, is to seek the aid of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Thereafter you will speedily digest with ease and eat with appetite, and your liver will reassert its right to regularity. Not only this, you can retire without a horrible dread that the Washington monument will—in dreams—impose itself upon the pit of your stomach. If you feel premonitory symptoms of chills and fever, kidney trouble or or rheumatism, summon the Bitters to the rescue without delay, "lest a worse thing befall you." A feeble condition of the system is more speedily changed to a vigorous one by this fine tonic than by any other medicinal agency in existence. A wineglassful three times a day.

The best of the present against the best of the past.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

The Tramp Nuisance.

Town and valley has been over-run with tramps the past week as it has never been over-run before. They travel in gangs of from two to half-a-dozen. They are a hard looking set and are a terror to women and children, particularly those residing outside the town limits. Sonoma Creek is lined with the vagrants every evening, it being a favorite camping place on account of its accessibility to hen roosts, corn fields, potato patches, orchards and vineyards. Not long since a resident of this place, while passing over the iron bridge which crosses the creek west of town, at about 7 o'clock in the evening, observed a number of hobos preparing supper. The menu, which was evidently purloined from the farms in the near vicinity, consisted of fried chicken, boiled eggs, green corn, boiled potatoes, raw tomatoes, apples, peaches and grapes. Verily, the tramp lives high in Sonoma Valley at the expense of its farmers.

Quinces by the Carload.

Robt. Howe of Eden Dale farm shipped his fifth carload of quinces to Chicago on Thursday last. He is now engaged in shipping to the same city his Tokay grape crop, which he estimates at between forty and fifty tons.

The Marti Estate.

A return sale of personal property in the estate of M. Marti, deceased, amounting to $2,352.50, has been filed by his widow, Mrs. M. Marti, who is executrix of the estate.

Highest Market Price Paid for Dried Fruit.

Parties having dried fruit for sale will consult their interest by calling on John Batto & Son., Vineyard Station, Sonoma county, Cal. P. O. address, Sonoma. *

Brevities.

Mrs. A. McHarvey was entertained in Santa Rosa by Mrs. P. N. Stofen last Tuesday.

Mrs. Robt. Howe, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Dora Howe, visited Napa last Thursday.

Fred. Chase of San Francisco visited the Chase stock farm last Sunday He returned the same day accompanied by his brother Willie, who has been visiting relatives here the past month.

There was quite a heavy frost throughout the valley last Wednesday morning, the first of the season. Santa Rosa and other places in the county also received a reminder of the approach of winter.

A. E. Leech has on exhibition in his blacksmith shop on Napa street a fine spring farm wagon, which reflects credit on his skill as a wagon maker. The wagon is entirely home made and shows strength and durability in all its parts.

Frank Weaver and Eph Cutter, who left for the Trinity county mines several weeks ago in company with Al. Weaver and J. P. Key, returned home last Monday evening. The two latter arrived in town on Monday of last week. The party have located what they consider to be a very good mine in Shasta county, and intend to return and develop the same next spring.

A social hop will be given at Union Hall on Friday evening, October 15th. A unique feature of the hop will be the awarding of a number of valuable prizes. One of these will go to the most popular lady in the hall and the others to the most graceful lady and gentleman on the floor. The affair is in the hands of a number of our young society people and will no doubt prove a grand social success.

A VICIOUS TRAMP.

Attempts to Assault an Officer and is Brought to Bay at the Point of a Six-Shooter.

On Wedesday afternoon last five tramps took possession of the Swiss Hotel, located right in the heart of town but which has been unoccupied for several months, and proceeded to make themselves at home. The owner of the property, upon discovering their presence, sent for City Marshal Robin and requested him to evict them. Upon the officer making his appearance the tramps became defiant and were ordered out of town. With considerable reluctance they started down Spain street with the City Marshal following in the rear. Upon reaching a point near the Haraszthy residence one of the hobos picked up a large rock and with an oath advanced upon the officer in a threatening and menacing manner. Officer Robin, retreating a step or two, warned the man to keep back. He continued to advance upon the officer who drew his six-shooter and brought the ruffian to bay, after which he arrested and placed him in the lock-up.

On Thursday morning the prisoner, who answered to the name of Dan Rice, appeared before Judge Cheney and pleading guilty to assault was sentenced to the County Jail for thirty days.

First-Street East Extension.

S. Schocken has completed the removal of the buildings which obstructed First-street East from Spain street to the railway depot, and will deed the street to the city at a meeting of the Board next Wednesday evening. Sealed proposals will be invited by the Trustees some time next week for curbing and grading the extension in order to throw it open to the public before the rainy season sets in. The City Trustees deserve credit in opening up this thoroughfare, which aside from proving a great public convenience will improve the appearance of the northern part of town.

Sudden Death.

Thos. Thompson, brother of ex-Supervisor Thompson, suddenly expired on the latter's ranch, between this place and Napa, on Saturday last. The deceased had been in poor health for the past fifteen or twenty years. Mr. Thompson was a native of Denmark and aged 76 years. He was a member of the Napa Lodge of Odd Fellows, under whose auspices his funeral took place Monday. The services at the grave in Mountain Cemetery were conducted by the members of Sonoma Lodge, No. 28, I. O. O. F.

Speaking of cleaning straw hats, the tan of a season's wear will vanish before a stiff old toothbrush dipped in lemon juice and flower of sulphur. The whole must be thoroughly gone over and the result will be very satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Phillips gave a pleasant dinner party at their residence on the Terry farm on Wednesday evening last. Dancing and singing were the attractions of the evening. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Miss Agnes Onell of San Francisco, Miss Mamie Speilla, Miss Hanna Voight, Miss Lucy Voight, Miss Nettie Goess, Messrs. Adolph Robin, Robt. Pasch, Horace Appleton, Frank Burris, E. C. Donaldson, George Phillips, George Cassidy, Art. Phillips.

The surprise party given by the students of the High School to Miss Vinnie Morris on Friday evening of last week was a pleasant affair and a complete surprise to the young lady. As she had just returned from a visit to Petaluma one can imagine her astonishment to find the house in possession of so many of her young companions. Soon, however, games, music and a good social time passed away the early hours of the evening. There were refreshments and more games, with plenty of laughter and merriment before the surprise party at the Morris home came to an end. The following were present: Misses Theo. Bates, Doris Clewe, Julie Granice, Maude Tompkins, Lydia Culberson, Maude Miner, Mabel Thomas, Nettie Thomas, Rena Yates, Kate Lankervis, Vinnie Morris, Kate Morris, Lena Shaw, Messrs. Will Chase, Bert Jones, Will Sherman, Ralph Murphy, Middleton Glaister, Skelton Glaister, Will Clewe, Ed. Morris. Howard Knight.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, OCT. 2, 1897.

STANDARD TIME.

The Four Sections Into Which the Country Is Divided.

Primarily, for the convenience of the railroads, a standard of time was established by mutual agreement in 1883, by which trains are run and local time regulated. According to this system, the United States, extending from 65 to 125 degrees west longitude, is divided into four time sections, each of 15 degrees of longitude, exactly equivalent to one hour. The first (eastern) section includes all territory between the Atlantic coast and an irregular line drawn from Detroit to Charleston, the latter being its most southern point. The second (central) section includes all the territory between the last named line and an irregular line from Bismarck to the mouth of the Rio Grande.

The third (mountain) section includes all territory between the last named line and nearly the western borders of Idaho, Utah and Arizona. The fourth (Pacific) section covers the rest of the country to the Pacific coast. Standard time is uniform inside each of these sections, and the time of each section differs from that next to it by exactly one hour. Thus at 12 noon in New York city (eastern time) the time at Chicago (central time) is 11 a. m.; at Denver (mountain time), 10 a. m., and at San Francisco (Pacific time), 9 o'clock a. m.

Standard time is 16 minutes slower at Boston than true local time, 4 minutes slower at New York, 8 minutes faster at Washington, 19 minutes faster at Charleston, 28 minutes slower at Detroit, 18 minutes faster at Kansas City, 10 minutes slower at Chicago, 1 minute faster at St. Louis, 28 minutes faster at Salt Lake City and 10 minutes faster at San Francisco.—Atlanta Constitution.

JONES' STRATEGY.

He Got His New Suit at Half Price by a Great Scheme.

Jones' new suit fits beautifully, but he was $10 shy on the price. He needed the suit badly, but his tailor was decidedly disinclined to part with it till it was paid for. After lying awake all night revolving in his mind various schemes old and new to get possession of the coveted attire Jones evolved a brilliant idea. He put on a high collar two sizes too large for him, went to his tailor and tried on the coat again. Of course it did not fit around the collar and would have to be let out. The next day he put on a collar a half size too small and tried it on again. The collar of the coat bulged out in the back as if it had been constructed for the neck of a pugilist.

"I can't wear that thing," declared Jones. "It does not fit at all."

"No, it does not seem to," admitted the tailor.

"You've tinkered with it now till you have nearly ruined it. I guess I don't want it."

"Well, I'll tell you what I'll do," proposed the tailor, who did not want a misfit left on his hands. "I'll knock off $5 on the price."

"Don't want a suit that don't fit," declared Jones.

"Well, I'll make it $10."

"Make it $12.50 and I'll take it."

"All right, but I lose money on it at that."

Jones paid another tailor $1 to have the collar altered, paid for his suit and had $1.50 with which to "wet it."—San Francisco Post.

She Won Her Bet.

The efficiency of the employees of the Jacksonville postoffice was put to a severe test recently, when the distributing clerk came across a photograph with a postage stamp attached and the only direction on it as follows, says the Florida Times-Union:

"Deliver to ——, Jacksonville, Fla."

Several of the employees were shown the picture, which was taken with a small camera, and which did not show the face of the person photographed very distinctly. One of the carriers named Walter G. Coleman, the general traveling agent of the F. C. and P. railway, was the person. Several of the clerks and carriers did not think that it was intended for Mr. Coleman, while others sided with the Bay street carrier. Finally a wager of $1 was made, and the carrier started out to deliver it.

When he reached Mr. Coleman's office, that gentleman at once claimed the photograph as one of himself. A week ago or more, while walking along Bay street, he met a young lady with a kodak, who took a snap shot at him in front of the Gardner building. She said that if the picture was a good one she would send it to him. It also appears that the young lady won a wager made with her father on the delivery of the photograph to Mr. Coleman with only the directions above.

Yellow Alaska Cedar.

The durability of this timber is forcibly illustrated by fallen trunks that are perfectly sound after lying in the damp woods for centuries. Soon after these trees fall they are overgrown with moss, in which seeds lodge and germinate and grow up into vigorous saplings, which stand in a row on the backs of their dead ancestors. Of this company of young trees perhaps three or four will grow to full stature, sending down straddling roots on each side and establishing themselves in the soil, and after they have reached an age of 200 or 300 years the downtrodden trunk on which they are standing, when cut into, is found as fresh in the heart as when it fell.—John Muir in Century.

STARTING A SYNDICATE.

Few Inside Lights on How Some Concerns Get to Work.

Scene—An office in the city. Time—After lunch. Present—Members of a proposed syndicate.

First Member—And now, gentlemen, to business. I suppose we may put down the capital at £50,000?

Second Member—Better make it £500,000. Half a million is so much easier to get.

Third Member—Of course. Who would look at a paltry £50,000?

First Member—Perhaps you are right. Five pound shares, eh?

Fourth Member—Better make them sovereigns; simpler to manipulate.

First Member—I dare say. Then the same solicitors as our last?

Fifth Member—Yes, on the condition that they get a firm to undertake the underwriting.

First Member—Necessarily. The firm I propose, gentlemen, are men of business and quite recognize that nothing purchases nothing.

Second Member—And they could get the secretary with a thousand to invest.

First Member—Certainly. Our brokers, bankers and auditors as before, eh, gentlemen?

Fifth Member—On the same conditions.

First Member—That is understood. And now the prospectus is getting into shape. Is there anything else any one can suggest?

Fourth Member—Oughtn't we to have some object in view?

First Member—Assuredly, making money.

Fourth Member—Don't be frivolous. But what I mean is, should we not know for what purpose we are going to expend the £500,000?

First Member—Oh! You mean the name. Well, that comparatively unimportant detail we might safely leave until our next pleasant gathering.

Meeting adjourned. Curtain.—London Punch.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention the Sonoma Index-Tribune and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

His "New Scientific Treatment" has cured thousands permanently by its timely use, and he considers it a simple professional duty to suffering humanity to donate a trial of his infallible cure.

Science daily develops new wonders, and this great chemist, patiently experimenting for years, has produced results as beneficial to humanity as can be claimed by any modern genius. His assertions that lung troubles and consumption are curable in any climate is proven by "heartfelt letters of gratitude," filed in his American and European laboratories in thousands from those cured in all parts of the world.

Medical experts concede that bronchial, chest and lung troubles lead to consumption, which, uninterrupted, means speedy and certain death.

Simply write to T. A. Slocum, M. C., 98 Pine street, New York, giving postoffice and express address, and the free medicine will be promptly sent. Sufferers should take instant advantage of his generous proposition.

English Public Documents and Ours.

The British government sells all its publications. It gives nothing away. If you want a copy of a bill that has been introduced into the house of commons or a report that has been presented to the house of lords or any public matter in the London county council or the board of aldermen of the city, you have to buy it from the official printers, and you have to pay postage if it is sent through the mails. In our country nearly all official documents of this kind are given away, and are sent free through the mails under a frank. The British plan seems to be the more sensible. It saves millions of dollars every year that are wasted in the United States to furnish public documents to people who do not care anything for them, and who throw them into the waste paper basket as soon as they are received. The charge for official publications is only sufficient to pay the cost and a small margin for wastage. Thus the government printing office is self supporting and the postal service pays a profit of $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 annually into the treasury. On the contrary, on our side of the Atlantic, it costs $5,000,000 or more to pay for printing for which no one is the wiser, and our postoffice department declares an Irish dividend of $9,000,000 or $10,000,000 every year, much of which is due to the transportation of "pub. docs."—Chicago Record.

Eating Marmalade With the Kurds.

The Kurdish chief and his elder sons stroked their beards and ejaculated "Mashallah!" whenever their European guest put his fork in his mouth. "My father, why does the Firengi eat with a hook?" a little Kurd asked at last, but all the answer he got was a smack from his father, at which he cried bitterly. To console him I gave him a spoonful of marmalade, which terrified him; but, fearful of being punished again for bad manners, he seized the spoon and gulped it down like a pill, saying, "Avolla Effendim." He must have liked it all the same, for soon afterward the father came and asked me what the "tatli" was. I gave him the pot, which he emptied. Murad then cleaned the knife and fork and shut them with a click into a patent clasp knife. This put too great a strain on the chief's curiosity, and he asked to see it close. After a careful examination he remarked oracularly, "In truth, only in Firengistan can they make such things of beauty."—Clive Bigham's "A Ride Through Western Asia."

Held His Audience.

"Ex-Representative George D. Wise of Richmond," said Colonel Sinnott, one of the capitol detectives, "is one of the best campaigners in the south. He can hold almost any kind of an audience with his oratory, but I saw him badly stumped a few years ago. Mr. Wise had been addressing for about ten minutes a monster crowd in front of Hanover courthouse on the issues of the day when he noticed a craning of necks on the part of his rustic audience and finally the departure of a dozen or more men in the direction of a fakir who was making a speech in front of a dirty looking circus tent. As the fakir told about the marvelous freaks to be seen inside—the rubber neck man, the bearded woman, the living skeleton, etc.—his voice swelled and swelled until Mr. Wise could hardly be heard. Seeing that he was about to lose his audience, Mr. Wise fairly yelled: 'Look over yonder, boys. There's a circus. Come with me. It's my treat.' He led the way, and every one in the crowd followed him. After the performance Mr. Wise resumed his speech under the tent."—Washington Post.

Her Poor Boy.

The Louisville Courier-Journal tells a story of a good old mother who received a dreadful shock the other day through a telegram from her boy, who is in New York enjoying himself. As enjoying one's self sometimes costs money, it is not strange that the young man sent the following somewhat slangy dispatch for more funds to his father:

"Had my leg pulled. Broke. Send me $50 by wire."

When the mother read this appeal, she was plunged in grief.

"My poor boy!" she moaned. "He must have been in one of those cable car things. Send him $100, father, and tell him to get the best doctor in the city."
